CARAVAGGIO & BERNINI

TO JANUARY 19, 2020

Discovery of Emotions

The exhibition presents an extravagantly visual baroque spectacle at the Kunsthistorisches Museum Vienna. Its focus is on the revolutionary works produced by the painter Michelangelo Merisi da Caravaggio (1571–1610) and the sculptor Gian Lorenzo Bernini (1598–1680). For the first time, these two titans of seventeenth-century art are juxtaposed in a single exhibition. These transformative artists share a new susceptibility for realism, verisimilitude and the pathos of grand emotions. Presenting over seventy masterpieces of Roman painting and sculpture – from Caravaggio to Bernini – this major exhibition focuses on the Baroque’s dramatic staging of human emotions.

The first major Caravaggio & Bernini Exhibition in Austria

The Kunsthistorisches Museum Vienna holds the largest and most important collection of works by Caravaggio and his followers outside Italy, but there has never been a major exhibition showcasing the painter and his era. Works by Gian Lorenzo Bernini, a sculptor born a generation later whose compositions greatly influenced Austrian baroque art, have also rarely been on show in this country.

KUNST HISTORISCHES MUSEUM WIEN

Rome in Vienna

The exhibition explores the phenomenon of the early Baroque and presents the revolutionary art produced in Rome during the first half of the seventeenth century. Caravaggio and Bernini were the Eternal City's foremost artists, causing a sensation both with their novel artistic ideas and their unconventional lifestyles.

Rome quickly evolved into a centre of innovative ideas and inventions. The show focuses on the revolution in the arts to which it played host between 1600 and 1650, which would greatly impact the rest of Europe. During these decades the city was a magnet for countless talented artists from all over Europe, from Florence, Naples and Lombardy, but also from France, Germany, Flanders and the Low Countries. They all experimented with these new themes and compositions, creating fascinating works filled with drama and passion, marked by depictions of unexpected or strong emotions and movement and a highly-dramatic use of colour. Their protagonists' expansive gestures, expressive features and actions reveal and display intense feelings. It became de rigueur for artists to appeal to the emotions of their audience. The five decades between 1600 and 1650 marked the birth of a fervently emotional art, not only in painting and sculpture but also in poetry, literature, music and theatre. A sudden shock – as in Caravaggio's Boy Bitten by a Lizard – documents the period's fascination with depicting strong emotions.

#barockstars

Another characteristic of the period later called the early baroque is a growing willingness among artists to collaborate, as exemplified by the founding of academies (Accademia di San Luca) and the many friendships that existed between artists. Painters and sculptors collaborated on the decoration of elaborate, costly family chapels and large galleries, in which the different media brilliantly complemented one another, enhancing each other's effect and expressive power. They sometimes appear so intertwined that it becomes difficult to separate them – yet another characteristic of Baroque art: sculptures that display painterly qualities, and paintings that create the illusion of architecture and sculpture.

By juxtaposing painting and sculpture, the exhibition hopes to offer a new perspective on the art produced in Rome in the early seventeenth century. There has never been an exhibition outside of Italy that showcased such a large selection of important masterworks from this period. Outstanding highlights of Roman early baroque art join forces to create a unique visual experience that is the first to focus on “the discovery of emotions” as an artistic challenge, while encouraging visitors to embark on a visual journey to the Eternal City. They will come face to face with Caravaggio’s and Bernini’s deepest artistic impulses, and a kaleidoscope of other masterpieces: works by painters such as Artemisia Gentileschi, Annibale Carracci, Nicolas Poussin, Mattia Preti, Guido Reni or Pietro da Cortona, and by sculptors including Francesco Mochi, Giuliano Finelli, Alessandro Algardi or François Du Quesnoy.

Highlights

Among the highlights of the exhibition – in addition to the paintings in the collection of the Kunsthistorisches Museum Vienna – are key works by Caravaggio including Narcissus, Boy Bitten by a Lizard, the celebrated John the Baptist, and the Portrait of the Maltese Knight Antonio Martelli. From Bernini’s oeuvre his Medusa, a model of the Elephant with Obelisk, a bust of Cardinal Richelieu, a statue of St Sebastian and a model for the sculpture St Theresa of Avila in Ecstasy will be presented in Vienna. Four small bronze heads never before on show to the public – they were originally designed to decorate the architect’s carriage and remain in the collection of his heirs – will also travel to Vienna. Other highlights of the exhibition include Guido Reni’s Massacre of the Innocents and Mary Magdalen (only re-discovered in 2011) by Artemisia Gentileschi, the only female artist to establish herself as one of the leading Italian master-painters in the early seventeenth century. Now in a private collection, the painting will be on show to the public for the very first time.

Important Loans from International Museums and Private Collections

The exhibition also brings together important loans from, to name but a few, the Rijksmuseum in Amsterdam, the Metropolitan Museum of Art in New York, the Louvre in Paris, the Uffizi in Florence, the Victoria and Albert Museum in London, the National Gallery in London, the Hermitage in Saint Petersburg, the Art Institute in Chicago, the Thyssen-Bornemisza Collection in Madrid, the Staatliche Museen zu Berlin, the Getty Museum in Los Angeles, the Pinacoteca Vaticana in the Vatican, and private lenders.

A Collaboration with the Rijksmuseum Amsterdam
